

RE3 Conference

Future Leaders Academy, June 11, 2023 at Université Laval, Quebec City

Young Professional Application

Deadline for submission: March 15th, 2023

Objective: To empower a new generation of professionals representing diverse backgrounds, considering gender balance and presence of underrepresented groups. Sixteen young professionals (defined by IUCN as 35 years old and younger) from Canada interested, early career or studying in the RE3 fields will be invited to attend the Academy. The curriculum is designed to prepare participants to engage fully in the discussions during the RE3 Conference and support the Plenary session that will follow the Academy. The content will emphasize governance in the context of the three themes: reclamation, restoration, and rewilding. The other theme considered are related to working in the field in practice such as project management, importance of engaging with communities (especially Indigenous communities), etc. The training faculty will be drawn from the invited participants to the Conference, and from amongst the IUCN membership. Small seminars and discussion groups will be the primary means for sharing knowledge and understanding of the issues. The topics include topics such as: difference about restoration, reclamation and rehabilitation; project management from planning to monitoring; job market; assessing risk. Selected candidates will be participating in the conference as rapporteur for the Workshop of the Future Restoration Agenda for Canada. The group will also be able to present their own reflections and call for action during the conference.

If you are interested in applying for this event, please fill the following form and attach a short explanation for your interest (one-page) to participate to this Academy and a one-page resume.
